

Owner creates new event on front-end

Front-end takes the event created and sends it to the back-end

Back-end grabs the event from the front-end and sends it to the database

Database retrieves the CRUD events and saves them

Database saves

Back-end then directs the front-end to an event page

Front-end directs to the event page and confirms